

During this week I have continued on my stoicism essay, it has really been a joy to write. However, I keep getting distracted by other ideas while trying to write my essays on veganism. Perhaps in the future I will need to abstain from promising a series of essays, as staying on the same topic for so long does not necessarily work for my creative process. I think I have learned from this a lot about me as a writer and what fuels my enjoyment. I hope I can finish an essay over break when I am feeling inspired.

